Brief Report of An Outrage Against the American Flag

INVASION OF ENGLAND CONSIDERED SERIOUSLY BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Nov. 18.—The request voiced by several London newspapers that the citizenry of England be instructed by the war office just how to act in case of a German invasion—whether to fight as citizens or remain passive—has prompted the Daily Mail to reprint orders issued more than a hundred years ago to meet a similar contingency. The author of the orders was the Duke of York, then commander-in-chief, and they were promulgated in 1801, when Britons regarded the landing of troops by Napoleon as not only possible but probable. At any rate this is to be inferred from the tone of the duke's pronouncement.

Commenting on this ancient document, the Daily Mail says it is "of special relevance at the present time, when the Germans are loudly proclaiming their intention of attempting invasion of this country." The order was headed: "Information and Instructions for Commanding Generals and Others."

"We must naturally suppose, from the host of foes that surround us and from the advantages our insular situation gives us while they can be kept at a distance, that their great object must be an invasion of these countries. The consequences of success would be to them so great that they may be led to attempt it, notwithstanding the superiority and exertions of our navy and the vigilance and gallantry of our seamen.

"Before the descent of the enemy is undoubtedly expected, or the particular object of it is known, the troops will be catenated or encamped in the manner that appears the most advantageous.

Dispositions will have been made for breaking up roads, driving and abandoning the country on the enemy's route, etc.

"On the first landing of an enemy, if he cannot be prevented in the attempt, not a moment must be lost in assembling the troops and pushing on the most advanced, however few in number, till more can be collected. The great object must be constantly to harass, alarm, and tire an enemy, and to impede his progress till a sufficient force assembles to attack him. The nature of the country affords every advantage for that purpose; intricate and inclosed, it is exceedingly difficult for an enemy to advance. He is never to be lost sight of by the light troops. Every inch of ground and every field may to a degree be disputed, even by inferior numbers.

"As soon as ever he has quitted the coast he must be surrounded in front, flank and rear; a knowledge of the country and a superiority of cavalry gives that advantage. He must be obliged to fight for every article of sustenance. The country must be driven and everything useful within his reach destroyed without mercy; the necessity of the case and the infinite consequence of giving him an immediate check; cattle and horses must at all events be removed."

HIGH SCHOOL FOR MINING MAY BE ORGANIZED HERE

PROF. F. C. LINCOLN SUGGESTS
PLAN FOR EXTENSION OF UNIVERSITY WORK.

As a result of the visit of Prof. F. C. Lincoln, director of the Mackay School of Mines, to Tonopah, the establishment of a mining high school at Tonopah is being considered, says the Gazette. If the plans are approved, it is thought similar schools may be established in other districts where a demand arises.

While in Tonopah, Prof. Lincoln found there are 150 miners in the district who are taking correspondence courses in mining. He conferred with most of the mine managers of the district, nearly all of whom were in Tonopah while he was there, and found them enthusiastically in favor of the idea. He says an attendance of 25 or 30 would justify such a school.

The plan is in line with the general purpose of university extension, and authorities of the university are doing all they can to urge the furtherance of federal legislation already proposed that would permit the use of federal funds or university extension in mining, much as the Smith-Lever act is used for agriculture.

Prof. Lincoln says the proposal to have a short course for prospectors at the university in February has resulted in the receipt of so many letters from prospectors and others that if all come who say they will, the Mackay School of Mines and its staff will be hard put to it to care for them.

While in Tonopah, Prof. Lincoln was unable to find time to go through the mines, but he talked with many mining men on the subject of extending the influence of the university in Nevada's mining districts.

WEST END BUYS BURNED CORNER ON BROUGHER AVE

The corner of Brougher avenue and Edwards street, formerly occupied by the two-story frame house owned by Henry E. Eck, the waterman, has been bought by the West End Consolidated Mining company, and the basement is being filled in with waste from the dump so as to level the site to the grade of the street. When this is finished the residence of G. W. Gilman will be moved away from the vicinity of the shaft and placed on the corner. The object is to secure better protection for the West End in the event of fire by removing inflammable structures from the neighborhood of their costly plant between Brougher and Oddie avenues.

It will be remembered that on the night of October 29th, when the Nevada theater fire threatened to sweep the entire block, the mining company had to bulkhead its shaft and resort to dynamite to remove some of the houses in the path of the fire. Manager Chandler did not lose any time in seeking an option on the corner and offering to remove the Gilman house. The offer was accepted and in a few days the change will be made.

WASHINGTON FEELS DEEP ANXIETY OVER THE U. S. S. TENNESSEE

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The United States cruiser Tennessee, or her launch, probably the latter, was fired upon yesterday by the Turkish forts at Smyrna. Captain Decker, of the cruiser, in reporting the incident, gave no details, but added fears were felt for the safety of the American consulate. Two theories of the attack are advanced:
The cruiser may have been sending a guard ashore to protect the consulate and Americans and other foreigners. Capt. Decker had called on Consul General Horton, who was returning after hours prescribed by the port officials.
Before regarding the action as hostile the officials are inclined to await further reports.
Some regard the incident as a misunderstanding. These say had Capt. Decker been convinced the forts fired on his ship as an act of hostility, the big fighting machine would not have steamed to Chios harbor without further incident.
The Tennessee was one of the three ships sent to Europe at the outbreak of hostilities to carry gold to the marooned Americans. After this mission had been accomplished the Tennessee was instructed by the State Department to proceed to the Turkish coast to protect American interests.
An Athens dispatch to the Havas agency yesterday said:
"The American warship Tennessee has arrived at the port of Vuria, Asia-Minor, and has put a stop to ill treatment of British, French and Russian residents. The authorities of Smyrna, fearing a bombardment, have left for the interior. The garrison at Smyrna consists of 35,000 Turkish soldiers."
